4. Chair Prabhu provided the following response from VP Lisa Chavez to a question raised by Senator Porter on February 13, 2018 (ASM 17-10):

The ITS Network team has been working with the Chancellor’s Office in the implementation of the Palo Alto border firewall as part of the Common Network Initiative Phase III. This project, funded and overseen through the Chancellor’s Office, provides a standardized deployment framework/methodology at all 23 Universities within the CSU system to help mitigate potential security risks system-wide. There was a review process and this was conveyed to the college ITC’s through in-person meetings and maintenance notifications via email.

As part of the implementation recommendations, the firewall rules were modified to remove “Any” region for non-secure web protocols and only allow “US” regions for non-secure protocols. Secure protocols are allowed for “Any” region. The site that is mentioned, ScienceCourseware.org, is in fact a non-secure site. ITC’s had the opportunity to request rule modifications before the go live to ensure hosts that were in need of world-wide accessibility were modified. ITS addressed these appropriately. Once ITS was alerted to the need for ScienceCourseware.org to be accessed remotely from “non-USA” regions, the appropriate rules were configured to accommodate this request. The intention of this project is to meet and address recommendations provided by the Chancellor’s Office ensuring we mitigate a potential risk to students, faculty, and staff.

ITS conducts monthly meetings with the college ITC’s, informing them of the upcoming changes to the campus network infrastructure, and any other changes to the IT landscape. Additionally, ITS notifies the entire campus community whenever large-scale changes are implemented via email notifications.

If there are issues with any of the hosts in the future, please notify the appropriate college ITC’s or reach out to the ITS Help Desk at Helpdesk@calstatela.edu or call 323-343-6170.

13. Senators Baaske and Harris spoke to the pro and con statements, respectively.
14. Chair Prabhu recognized Marcos Montes, who spoke on behalf of its author, Neyda Umana, ASI Vice President for Academic Governance.

15. Senator Riggio read the following on behalf of Senator McCurdy: I would vote against the motion to decrease the number of office hours, for the following reasons:

- The policy change is not student-centered. Students have a variety of obligations outside the classroom, and fewer contact hours (whatever the modality) can make it even harder for students to connect to their instructors if and when they need it.
- Senators should consider implications for different disciplines, large lectures, and high fail-rate classes. For example, for many courses, emails or phone conversations are not necessarily sufficient to support student learning. For example, problem solving in math, chemistry, physics. I have found that watching how a student approaches a problem as they are solving it in front of me allows me to tailor my help to best meet their needs.
- I am representing a number of my NSS colleagues’ view on this. I checked with several of my department and NSS colleagues who are not senators, and they do not agree. The NSS Steering Committee also was not in favor of this change.

I would be in favor of a motion that restores the pro-rated 4 hour maximum office hours, while giving flexibility to match the mode of the contact (face to face, asynchronous, etc.) with the needs of the course/student.
